Современные технологии в сфере сельскохозяйственного производства и образования

The screenshot shows the WordMint interface for creating word scrambles. On the left, there's a sidebar with options like 'Print', 'Export/Convert', 'Title' (set to 'Higher education'), 'Header' (set to 'Name, Date'), 'Font' (set to 'Trebuchet MS'), and a list of words from a word bank. On the right, the main area is titled 'Higher education' and contains a list of 14 scrambled words for students to unscramble. A message at the bottom right encourages Windows activation.

This screenshot shows the WordMint interface for creating crossword puzzles. It includes fields for 'Question' and 'Answer', a 'Type a question and answer' input, and a 'Add Multiple Clues' button. Below these are lists of word bank items and their definitions. To the right is a preview of a crossword grid for 'Higher education' with various words like 'SCHOOL', 'BUSINESS', and 'AGRICULTURE' placed into it. The preview also includes a list of across and down clues with their definitions.

Research shows that students can use puzzles (word searches, scrambles, crossword puzzles) to develop many skills that can be applied to other areas of life. For example, they can increase their vocabulary or improve spelling accuracy.

Puzzles help students broaden their horizons, test their developed logical thinking. Puzzles are an interactive way to increase students' self-confidence and self-esteem when learning a second (or third) language. Using them in your lesson can help motivate you to learn a foreign language and cooperate. These are cheap, high-quality, interesting and portable materials for teachers.

WordMint provides teachers with a quick opportunity to create diverse and exciting lessons, also saves time. It's not easy to plan lessons in a modern classroom, especially when you have students with different levels of knowledge. WordMint allows you to differentiate between word search and other puzzles in just a few minutes. You can offer each student exercises depending on his level.

WordMint will involve all students in the educational process. Offer students independent activities such as word search by time, bingo tournaments and team crosswords. You will understand that students of all levels of training are looking forward to well-organized and creative lessons that promote interaction and responsibility.
